Dear Sir,

My husband reported to me the present state of my W.Va. property. It is very disheartening to me to have the CIA, practically, endorse Miss [REDACTED], grab, failure and neglect to pay for the property.

Somehow, I feel ashamed, as an American, to have one of the most important Departments endorse, so to speak, the reprehensible behavior of one of its employee's, even if it is done in its private life. In the CIA, there should not be even the smallest doubt of the character of any of its employees. Especially not, when it is used in a reprehensible way to obtain valuable land without paying for it. And, this was done to two invalids, who are in very urgent need. There is a name for such behavior and the CIA should never be a party to it.

I appeal to your manhood, if not to the reputation of the Agency, to correct this situation and have all the arrears immediately paid.

Sincerely yours, I am,

Lawrence E. Houston
